We can't predict the future. Past performance isn't a guide to future performance.

The value of your investment can go down as well as up so you might get back less than you put in. For investments in the PAC With-Profits Range of Funds, the value of the policy depends on the profits made by the long term fund of The Prudential Assurance Company Limited and how these profits are distributed.

Because of changes in exchange rates the value of your investment, as well as the money you take from it, can go down as well as up.

Please note fund performance before 25 July 2005 is based on returns from the PIA Sterling With-Profits Sub-Fund. Short-term outlook: Economic activity across key developed markets remains weak but is steadying. The weakness in global manufacturing may have bottomed but the wider economy is not yet seeing the same improvement. A return to substantially above-potential growth would require a strengthening in the demand for capital goods and for political risks to abate. The latter is not a given. The US election may cause uncertainty towards the second half of the year, while the recent escalation in US-Iran relations may weigh on sentiment in the near term. Brexit tail risks remain as the UK and EU enter trade negotiations. The lack of credibility of the "phase one" trade deal between the US and China means trade tensions could return at any time. Capital markets appear to price a marked rebound in economic activity.

Inflation: Inflation in major developed markets is close to or below central bank targets in major developed markets. Any pick up in core inflation is likely to be limited. Rising unit labour costs only slowly feed through to consumer prices. The Phillips curve, i.e. the empirical relationship between unemployment and consumer price inflation, has weakened at a local level as the weight of inflation components more sensitive to the business cycle has declined over recent decades. Inflation is currently not a constraint for developed market central banks.

Monetary Policy: Following significant monetary stimulus last year, major developed market central banks are not looking to loosen policy further. Should conditions warrant it, however, they do have room to ease policy further thereby loosening financial conditions. Some of the transmission channels of monetary policy may not work as well as in the past. In an environment characterised by high uncertainty and policy rates close to zero in many countries, fiscal policy would be more effective in stimulating the economy.

Please note

You may only invest in one PAC With-Profits Range of Funds. Investments in PAC With-Profits Range of Funds are backed by assets in the With-Profits Fund of The Prudential Assurance Company Ltd through a reinsurance agreement.

The returns shown are the returns on the underlying assets. The actual returns on any policy are smoothed and will depend on the bonuses declared over the period of investment.

If money invested in the PAC With-Profits Range of Funds is taken out at any time, except on death, maturity or to meet certain regular withdrawals, PAC may reduce the amount to reflect the current market value of the underlying assets. This is known as a Market Value Reduction. In addition an Early Cash-In Charge may apply in the first five years of any investment into the bond.

For any fund, there may be a delay in buying, selling or switching of units. These delays will only apply in exceptional circumstances and if this applies to you, we will let you know. For more information, please refer to your Contract Conditions, which you can get from your Financial Adviser.
